INTRODUCTION

THE Peace was exhibited at the great city Dionysia in March 421B.c., at a time when Athens and Sparta were "alike weary of the long continuance of the Peloponnesian war, and alike disposed to put an end to the conflict upon any fair and honourable terms," a the Spartans being especially disheartened by their reverse at Pylos (cf. Thuc. iv. 55), and the Athenians by the military successes of Brasidas in Thrace and their defeat by the Boeotians at Delium in 424.b The two chief obstacles to peace (cf. Thuc. v. 14-16) had been "Cleon the Athenian demagogue and Brasidas the Spartan general: Brasidas, because of the success and the glory which he was gaining in the war; Cleon, because in quiet times his malpractices would be more apparent and his calumny less easily believed," 6 but both these obstacles had been removed by the death of Cleon and Brasidas in the battle of Amphipolis, and "hardly had this play been produced upon the stage when the Peace of which it sang dawned upon the Hellenic world," the Peace of Nicias—a peace for fifty years—being concluded in March or April 421.

s. II. By Apollo, no, not I!

I can't endure this muck a moment longer; a

I'll take and pitch the muck-tub in and all.

s. 1. Aye to the crows, and follow it yourself.

s. 11. Can any one of you, I wonder, tell me Where I can buy a nose not perforated? There's no more loathly miserable task Than to be mashing dung to feed a beetle. A pig or dog will take its bit of muck Just as it falls: but this conceited brute Gives himself airs, and, bless you, he won't touch it Unless I mash it all day long, and serve it As for a lady, in a rich round cake. Now I'll peep in and see if he has done, Holding the door, thus, that he mayn't observe me. Aye, tuck away; go gobbling on, don't stop; I hope you'll burst yourself before you know it. Wretch! how he throws himself upon his food, Squared like a wrestler, grappling with his jaws, Twisting his head and hands, now here, now there, For all the world like men who plait and weave Those great thick ropes to tow the barges with. 'Tis a most stinking, foul, voracious brute. Nor can I tell whose appanage b he is: I really think he can't be Aphrodite's, Nor vet the Graces'.

s. r. No? then whose? s. rr. I take it

THE PEACE, 43-70

Now I suspect some pert young witling there Is asking, "Well, but what's it all about? What can the beetle mean?" And then I think That some Ionian, sitting by, will answer, " Now, I've nae doubt but this is aimed at Cleon,b It eats the muck sae unco shamelessly."

But I will in, and give the beetle drink.

s. I. And I will tell the story to the boys, And to the lads, and also to the men, And to the great and mighty men among you, And to the greatest mightiest men of all. My master's mad; a novel kind of madness, Not your old style, but quite a new invention. For all day long he gazes at the sky, His mouth wide open, thus; and rails at Zeus: O Zeus, says he, what seekest thou to do? Lay down thy besom, sweep not Hellas bare! d TRYGAEUS (behind the scenes). Ah me! Ah me! Hush! for methinks I hear him speaking now.

TR. (behind the scenes) O Zeus.

What wouldest thou with our people? Thou wilt drain The lifeblood from our cities ere thou knowest!

Aye, there it is; that's just what I was saying: Ye hear yourselves a sample of his ravings. But what he did when first the frenzy seized him I'll tell you: he kept muttering to himself, Oh if I could but somehow get to Zeus! With that he got thin scaling ladders made, And tried by them to scramble up to heaven,

" Make it empty of inhabitants because of the wars": Schol.

c R., with the Scholiast, takes this not of the war-mania but of the μανία δικανική which A. had dealt with the year before in the Wasps. But this seems inconsistent with the prayer in 59, which clearly refers to war.

 $^{\circ}$  κάνθαροs, says Athenaeus (xi. 47), is the name of a particular kind of ship. It was probably so called "from something in its shape and appearance which made it, with the oars reaching out on each side, bear a certain resemblance to a monstrous beetle": R.

<sup>d</sup> Peiraeus had "three natural bays" (Thuc. i. 93), and one of these seems to have been called Cantharus from a traditional hero of that name.

(I wonder what in the world he means By pointing his nose at those foul latrines.) Rise, gallantly rise, from the earth to the skies. And on with the beat of your pinion fleet Till you come to Zeus in his heavenly seat. From all your earthly supplies of dirt, From ordure and muck your nostril avert. Man! man in Peiraeus! you'll kill me I swear, Committing a nuisance! good fellow, forbear; Dig it down in the ground, scatter perfumes around, Heap, heap up the earth on the top, Plant sweet-smelling thyme to encircle the mound, Bring myrrh on its summit to drop; For if I through your folly shall tumble to-day, And my enterprise fail to succeed in, Five talents the city of Chios c shall pay On account of your breach—of good-breeding.

πραέσι, μη δρθοῖs, with which R. agrees, taking φαιδροῖs as indicating "beaming, sleek good nature." T. wants not spirits but good temper in his steed.

There seems, owing to some misconduct of the Chians at Sparta, to have been a popular saying, Xîος ἡν ὁ ἀποπατῶν, "it was a Chian who made the mess." T. therefore assumes that a Chian was guilty in this case.

THE PEACE, 173-192

(The scene suddenly changes) a

Zounds! how you scared me: I'm not joking now. I say, scene-shifter, have a care of me. You gave me quite a turn; and if you don't Take care, I'm certain I shall feed my beetle. But now, methinks, we must be near the Gods;

And sure enough there stand the halls of Zeus. Oh, open! open! who's in waiting here?

HERMES. A breath of man steals o'er me: whence, whence comes it?

O Heracles, what's this?

TR. A beetle-horse.

HE. O shameless miscreant, vagabond, and rogue, O miscreant, utter miscreant, worst of miscreants, How came you here, you worst of all the miscreants? Your name? what is it? speak!

TR. The worst of miscreants.

HE. Your race? your country? answer!

TR. Worst of miscreants.

HE. And who's your father?

TR. Mine? the worst of miscreants.

HE. O by the Earth but you shall die the death Unless you tell me who and what you are.

TR. Trygaeus, an Athmonian, skilled in vines <sup>d</sup>; No sycophant, no lover of disputes.

HE. Why are you come?

TR. To offer you this meat.

THE PEACE, 193-219

HE. How did you get here, Wheedling a?

Then I'm not quite the worst of miscreants now.

So just step in and summon Zeus.

не. О!О!

When you're not likely to come NEAR the Gods! They're gone: they left these quarters yesterday.

TR. Where on Earth are they?

HE.

Earth, indeed!

TR. But where?

HE. Far, far away, close to Heaven's highest dome.

TR. How came they then to leave you here alone?

HE. I have to watch the little things they left, Pipkins and pannikins and trencherlets.

TR. And what's the reason that they went away?

HE. They were so vexed with Hellas: therefore here
Where they were dwelling, they've established War,
And given you up entirely to his will.
But they themselves have settled up aloft,
As high as they can go; that they no more
May see your fightings or receive your prayers.

TR. Why have they treated us like that? do tell me.

HE. Because, though They were oftentimes for Peace, You always would have War. If the Laconians Achieved some slight advantage, they would say, "Noo by the Twab sall master Attic catch it;" Or if the Attics had their turn of luck, And the Laconians came to treat for peace, At once ye cried, "We're being taken in, Athene! Zeus! we can't consent to this; They're sure to come again if we keep Pylus."

TR. Yes; that's exactly how we talked: exactly.

HE. So that I know not if ye e'er again Will see the face of Peace.

TR. Why, where's she gone to?

HE. War has immured her in a deep deep pit.

TR. Where?

Here, beneath our feet. And you may see
The heavy stones he piled about its mouth,
That none should take her out.

TR. I wish you'd tell me How he proposes now to deal with us.

HE. I only know that yester eve he brought Into this house a most gigantic mortar.

TR. What is he going to do with that, I wonder!

HE. He means to put the cities in and pound them. But I shall go. He's making such a din I think he's coming out.

TR. Shoo! let me run
Out of his way: methought that I myself
Heard a great mortar's war-inspiring blast.

war.<sup>a</sup> O mortals! mortals! wondrous-woeful mortals! How ye will suffer in your jaws directly!

Such as fell to Phormio's a share, I would never more thereafter so morose and bitter be, Nor a judge so stubborn-hearted,

From Lyceum, to Lyceum,

Now then tell us what you would
Have us do, and we'll obey,
Since by fortune fair and good
You're our sovereign Lord to-day.

TR. Come let me see which way to move the stones.

HE. Rogue! miscreant! what are you up to now?

THE PEACE, 494-519

HE. Yo ho! pull away.

TR. Pull away, away, away.

ch. Some of you still are designing us ill.

TR. Ye who fain Peace would gain, Pull and strain, might and main.

сн. Some one's hindering us again.

HE. Plague take you, men of Megara; get out!

The Goddess hates you: she remembers well

'Twas you that primed her up at first a with garlic.

Stop, stop, Athenians: shift your hold a little;

It's no use pulling as you're now disposed.

You don't do anything but go to law.

No, if you really want to pull her out,

Stand back a trifle further towards the sea.

CH. Come, let us farmers pull alone, and set our shoulders to it.

HE. Upon my word you're gaining ground:

I think you're going to do it.

ch. He says we're really gaining ground:

cheer up, cheer up, my hearty.

TR. The farmers have it all themselves, and not another party.

CH. Pull again, pull, my men,
Now we're gaining fast.
Never slacken, put your back in,
Here she comes at last.

Pull, pull, pull, every man, all he can; Pull, pull, pull, pull,

Pull, pull, pull, all together.

(Peace is lifted out with her two attendants, Harvesthome and Mayfair.)

K. 494. But ἡλείψατε seems here to describe "rubbing down with garlic"—a process which "the Goddess" might well "detest."

THE PEACE, 520-545

TR. Giver of grapes, O how shall I address you?

O for a word ten thousand buckets big

Wherewith to accost you: for I've none at hand.

Good morning, Harvesthome: good morn, Mayfair.a

O what a lovely charming face, Mayfair!

(Kisses her)

O what a breath! how fragrant to my heart, How sweet, how soft, with perfume and inaction.

HE. Not quite the odour of a knapsack, eh?

TR. Faugh! that odious pouch of odious men, I hate it. It has a smell of rancid-onion-whiffs;
But she of harvests, banquets, festivals,
Flutes, thrushes, plays, the odes of Sophocles, Euripidean wordlets,

O how dare you Slander her so: I'm sure she does not like That logic-monger's wordy disputations.

TR. (continuing) The bleating lambs, the ivy-leaf, the vat, Full-bosomed matrons hurrying to the farm, The tipsy maid, the drained and emptied flask, And many another blessing.

See how the reconciled cities greet and blend
In peaceful intercourse, and laugh for joy;
And that, too, though their eyes are swoln and blackened,

And all cling fast to cupping instruments.<sup>c</sup>
TR. Yes, and survey the audience: by their looks

You can discern their trades.

HE. O dear! O dear!

Don't you observe the man that makes the crests

" i.e. to reduce the swelling.

a Pheidias had been bitterly attacked as the friend of Pericles, and in the end, on the ground that in the battle-scene on the shield of his statue of Athene he had introduced likenesses of himself and Pericles, was thrown into prison and died. In consequence of this and similar attacks on Aspasia and his teacher Anaxagoras, Pericles according to Plutarch (Per. c. 30-31, 32) "fearing the dicasteries," stirred up the Peloponnesian War. See R.

Well then, attend to what she asks me now.
Who in your city loves her least? and who Loves her the best and shrinks from fighting most?

TR. Cleonymus, I think, by far the most.

HE. What sort of man is this Cleonymus
In military matters?

Only he's not his so-called father's son;
For if he goes to battle, in a trice
He proves himself a castaway—of shields.a

HE. Still further listen what she asks me now.

Who is it now that sways the Assembly-stone b?

TR. Hyperbolus c at present holds the place. But how now, Mistress? Why avert your eyes?

HE. She turns away in anger from the people, For taking to itself so vile a leader.

TR. He's a mere makeshift: we'll not use him now.

'Twas that the people, bare and stripped of leaders,
Just caught him up to gird itself withal.

HE. She asks how this can benefit the state.

TR. 'Twill make our counsels brighter.

HE. Will it? how?

TR. Because he deals in lamps: before he came
We all were groping in the dark, but now
His lamps may give our council-board some light.

HE. Oh! oh!
What things she wants to know!

TR. What sort of things?

HE. All the old things existing when she left.

And first, she asks if Sophocles be well.

Were to fill with the praise of himself and his plays our own anapaestic a address. But if ever, O daughter of Zeus, it were fit with honour and praise to adorn b A Chorus-Instructor, the ablest of men, the noblest that ever was born. Our Poet is free to acknowledge that he is deserving of high commendation: It was he that advancing, unaided, alone, compelled the immediate cessation Of the jokes which his rivals were cutting at rags, and the battles they waged with the lice. It was he that indignantly swept from the stage the paltry ignoble device Of a Heracles needy and seedy and greedy, a vagabond sturdy and stout, Now baking his bread, now swindling instead, now beaten and battered about. And freedom he gave to the lachrymose slave who was wont with a howl to rush in. And all for the sake of a joke which they make on the wounds that disfigure his skin: "Why, how now, my poor knave?" so they bawl to the slave, ' has the whipcord invaded your back, Spreading havoc around, hacking trees to the ground, with a savage resistless attack?" Such vulgar contemptible lumber at once he bade from the drama depart, And then, like an edifice stately and grand, he raised and ennobled the Art. High thoughts and high language he brought on the stage, a humour exalted and rare,

Nor stooped with a scurrilous jest to assail some small-man-and-woman affair. No, he at the mightiest quarry of all with the soul of a Heracles flew, And he braved the vile scent of the tan-pit, and went through foul-mouthed revilings for you. And I at the outset came down in the lists with the jaggèd-fanged a monster to fight, Whose eyeballs were lurid and glaring with flames of Cynna's b detestable light; And around his forehead the thin forked tongues of a hundred sycophants quiver. And his smell was the smell of a seal, and his voice was a brawling tempestuous River, And his hinder parts like a furnace appeared, and a goblin's uncleansable liver. But I recked not the least for the look of the beast; I never desponded or quailed, And I fought for the safety of you and the Isles c; I gallantly fought and prevailed. You therefore should heed and remember the deed. and afford me my guerdon to-day, For I never went off to make love to the boys in the schools of athletic display Heretofore when I gained the theatrical prize:

It is right then for all, young and old, great and small, Henceforth of my side and my party to be, And each bald-headed man should do all that he can That the prize be awarded to me.

For be sure if this play be triumphant to-day,

Having caused you great joy and but little annoy,

sure it this play be unumphante to day,

but I packed up my traps and departed, and mightily pleased the true-hearted.

THE PEACE, 990-1015

These thirteen long years a have been pining for you. When our fightings are stayed, and our tumults allayed, We will hail thee a Lady for ever: And O put an end to the whispers of doubt, These wonderful clever Ingenious suspicions we bandy about; And solder and glue the Hellenes anew With the old-fashioned true Elixir of love, and attemper our mind With thoughts of each other more genial and kind. Moreover we pray that our market-place may Be furnished each day with a goodly display, And for garlic, and cucumbers early and rare, Pomegranates, and apples in heaps to be there, And wee little coats for our servants to wear. And Boeotia to send us her pigeons and widgeons, And her geese and her plovers: and plentiful creels Once more from Copaïs to journey with eels, And for us to be hustling, and tussling, and bustling, With Morychus, Teleas, Glaucetes, all The gluttons together besieging the stall, To purchase the fish: and then I could wish For Melanthius to come too late for the fair, And for them to be sold, and for him to despair, And out of his own Medea a groan Of anguish to borrow, "I perish! I perish! bereaved of my sweet, My treasure, my darling, embowered in her beet c;" And for all men to laugh at his sorrow.

For garnishing eels with beet cf. A. 894, where an eel thus bedecked is similarly spoken of as a beautiful maiden. The lines here are said to be a parody of lines from the Medea of Melanthius.

Your gift of Peace has brought us. Till to-day

And now! I'm selling them two pounds apiece.
And my friend here sells casks for country use Half a crown each. Trygaeus, freely take
As many casks and sickles as you please.
And take this too (giving money); out of our sales

We bring you these, we two, as wedding presents.

To join the marriage feast: here comes a man
Who trades in arms: he seems put out at something.

TR. How now, poor wretch! what ails you? got a crestache? a c.-M. You have destroyed my living and my trade, And this man's too, and yon spear-burnisher's.

TR. What shall I give you, then, for these two crests? c.-M. What nill you give?

TR. Faith, I'm ashamed to say:

Come, there's a deal of work about this juncture b;

I'll give three quarts of raisins for the pair.

'Twill do to wipe my table down withal.

Yes; I'll not cheat. TR.

I'll have fair play: an arm for every hole.

TR. Why not, you rascal? Marry, I suppose

My seat of honour's worth eight hundred shillings.

B.-s. Well, fetch the silver out.

TRU. O me! he mocks me.

TR. Here's another plan:

Pour in the lead as I advised before,
Then at the top suspend a pair of scales
With little cords, and there's a famous balance
To weigh out figs for labourers on the farm.

HELMET-SELLER. Thou hast destroyed me, dread unpitying Fate!

These helmets stood me in a good four pounds. What am I now to do? who'll buy them now?

They're just the things they measure physic in.<sup>a</sup>

TRU. O, helmet-seller, we are both undone.

TR. Why, he's received no hurt.

H.-s.

Received no hurt!

Pray what's the use of all these helmets now?

TR. Just clap on each a pair of ears, like these,

They'll sell much better then than now they will.

H.-s. O come away, spear-burnisher.

TR. No, no.

I'm going to buy his spears: I really am.

SPEAR-BURNISHER. What are you going to give?

TR. Saw them in two,

I'll buy them all for vine-poles, ten a penny. s.-B. The man insults us: come away, my friend.

TR. Aye, go your way, for here come out the boys,
Those whom the guests have brought us; I suppose
They're going to practise what they're going to sing.
Come and stand here by me, my boy, and then
Let's hear you practise what you mean to sing.

TR. Perdition seize you, boy, your wars and all!
You sing of nought but battles: who's your father?
BOY. Whose? mine?

TR. Yes, yours, by Zeus!

BOY. Why, Lamachus.

TR. Ugh, out upon it!
Truly I marvelled, and thought to myself as I heard your performance,

This is the son of some hacker,

and thwacker, and sacker of cities.

Get to the spearmen, sing to them: begone.

Here, here, I want Cleonymus's son.

You, sing before we enter: sure I am

You won't sing wars: you've too discreet a father.

SECOND BOY. "Ah! some Saean is vaunting

the targe, which I in the bushes

Sadly, a blameless shield, left as I fled from the field." a

TR. Tell me, you pretty baboon, are you making a mock of your father?

BOY. "Nay, but my LIFE I preserved,"

TR. But you shamed the parents who gave it.

Well go we in, for sure I am that you,

Being your father's son, will nevermore Forget the song you sang about the shield.

Now then 'tis right, my jolly rogues, that you should, here remaining,

Munch, crunch, and bite with all your might,

no empty vessels draining;

With manly zeal attack the meal,

And saw and gnaw with either jaw,

there's no advantage really

In having white and polished teeth unless you use them freely.

INTRODUCTION

The Birds was exhibited at the Great Dionysia in the archonship of Chabrias, 414 B.c. It was placed second, the prize being awarded to the Revellers (Κωμασταί) of Ameipsias, and Phrynichus coming third with the Solitary (Μονότροπος).

At this date, "Athens was at the height of her power and prosperity. Six or seven years of comparative peace had recruited her numbers, and replenished her treasury. She had just launched against Sicily the most formidable armament that ever issued from an Hellenic harbour. No shadow of the coming catastrophe dimmed the brightness of the outlook." a The Peace of Nicias, in 421 B.C., had given her all she had fought for, and before her eyes loomed visions of conquest and empire in Sicily, Carthage, and Libya, when the fleet set sail in B.C. 415. Aristophanes "gives a comic representation of the high schemes and ambitions which were in the air; not as encouraging them, for his caricature is fantastic and ludicrous in the extreme: yet not as discouraging them, since even his fantastic adventure is crowned with a brilliant success. this sense, and no further, may the Birds be considered as allegorical." b Yet attempts have been made to fasten the satire to some definite event; the best known being that of Professor Süvern. Others have tried to identify Peisthetaerus with Alcibiades. All these attempts fail when details are examined, and they spoil the spirit of the comedy.

For the names of birds mentioned, the reader may be referred to Professor D'Arcy Thompson's Glossary of Greek Birds (1895); but Mr. Rogers's Introduction describes their looks and habits fully with reference to the allusions in the play.

• The hoopoe is really an actor, who has obtained his plumage in the bird-market, where these birds were also bought; they might therefore be expected to find him. Pandion of Athens had two daughters, Procne and Philomela; Tereus of Thrace married the one and outraged the other; the sisters killed his son Itys, and served him up for his father's dinner; he pursued them, and they were changed, Tereus into a hoopoe, Procne into a nightingale, and Philomela into a swallow (Apollodorus, iii. 14).

So then this daw, this son of Tharreleides, We bought for an obol, and that crow for three. But what knew they? Nothing, but how to—bite! Where are you gaping now? Do you want to lead us Against the rocks? There's no road here, I tell you.

PEI. No, nor yet here; not even the tiniest path.

EU. Well, but what says your crow about the road?

PEI. By Zeus, she croaks quite differently now.

EU. (shouting) WHAT DOES SHE SAY ABOUT THE ROAD?

PEI. She says

She'll gnaw my fingers off: that's all she says. EU. Now isn't it a shame that when we are here Ready and willing as two men can be To go to the ravens, we can't find the way. For we are sick, spectators, with a sickness Just the reverse of that which Sacas c has. He, no true townsman, would perforce press in; Whilst we, with rights of tribe and race unchallenged, Townsmen mid townsmen, no man scaring us, Spread both our-feet, and flew away from home. Not that we hate our city, as not being A prosperous mighty city, free for all To spend their wealth in, paying fines and fees. Ave, the cicalas chirp upon the boughs One month, or two; but our Athenians chirp Over their lawsuits all their whole life long. That's why we are journeying on this journey now, Trudging along with basket, pot, and myrtles,d To find some quiet easy-going spot,

Acestor, a tragic poet, mentioned also W. 1221, was a naturalized foreigner: Sacas means Scythian.

Where we may settle down, and dwell in peace. Tereus, the hoopoe, is our journey's aim, To learn if he, in any place he has flown to, Has seen the sort of city that we want.

PEI. You there!

EU. What now?

PEI. My crow keeps croaking upwards

Ever so long.

Eu. And here's my jackdaw gaping
Up in the air, as if to show me something.
There must be birds about, I am sure of that.
Let's make a noise and we shall soon find out.

PEI. Then harkye; bang your leg against the rock.

EU. And you, your head; and there'll be twice the noise.

PEI. Well, take a stone and knock.

EU. Yes, I'll do that.

Boy! Boy!

You should call "Whoop-ho there," not "Boy"?

Course.

EU. O, Whoop-ho there! What, must I knock again? Whoop-ho!

PLOVER-PAGE. Who ever are these? Who calls my master?

EU. Apollo shield us, what a terrible gape!

P.-P. These be two bird-catchers. O dear, O dear! EU. (aside) As nasty-speaking, as unpleasant-looking!

P.-P. Ye shall both die!

EU. O, we're not men.

P.-P. What then?

EU. Well, I'm the Panic-struck, a Libyan bird.

P.-P. Nonsense!

No nonsense: look for yourself and see.a EU.

P.-P. And he—what bird is he? come, won't you answer?

PEI. I? I'm a pheasant, and a yellow-tailed one.

EU. But O by all the Gods, whatever are you?

P.-P. A serving-bird.

What, vanquished by some gamecock EU.

In fight?b

No, but my master, when he first P.-P. Became a hoopoe, prayed that I might turn Into a bird, to be his servant still.

EU. What, does a bird require a serving-bird?

P.-P. He does, as having been a man, I fancy. So when he wants to taste Phaleric sardines. I run for the sardines, catching up a dish. Does he want soup? then where's the pot and ladle? I run for the ladle.

A regular running-page. EU. Now harkye, Plover-page, run in and call Your master out.

Great Zeus! he has just been eating P.-P. Myrtles and midges, and is gone to roost.

EU. But still, do wake him.

Well, I know he won't P.-P. Like to be waked, still for your sake I'll do it.

PEI. Confound the bird! he frightened me to death.

EU. O dear! O dear! my heart went pit-a-pat, My daw's gone too.

Gone! O you coward you. PEI. (severely) You LET him go!

THE BIRDS, 178-200

PEI. What did you see?

HOO. I saw the clouds and sky.

PEI. And is not that the Station a of the Birds?

Hoo. Station?

PEI. As one should say, their habitation.

Here while the heavens revolve, and yon great dome Is moving round, ye keep your Station still. Make this your city, fence it round with walls, And from your Station is evolved your State. So ye'll be lords of men, as now of locusts, And Melian famine b shall destroy the Gods.

HOO. Eh! how?

PEI. The Air's betwixt the Earth and Sky.

And just as we, if we would go to Pytho, Must crave a grant of passage from Boeotia, Even so, when men slay victims to the Gods, Unless the Gods pay tribute, ye in turn Will grant no passage for the savoury steam To rise through Chaos, and a realm not theirs.

ноо. Hurrah!

O Earth! ods traps, and nets, and gins, and snares, This is the nattiest scheme that e'er I heard of! So with your aid I'm quite resolved to found The city, if the other birds concur.

PEI. And who shall tell them of our plan?

Hoo. Yourself.

O they're not mere barbarians, as they were Before I came. I've taught them language now.

"moves about" ( $\pi \circ \lambda \in \hat{\tau} \alpha \iota$ ), and all things "go on in it" as they do in space ( $\tau \circ \pi \circ s$ ). Then  $\pi \circ \lambda \circ s$  suggests  $\pi \circ \lambda \iota s$  and  $\pi \circ \lambda \circ \tau \alpha \iota$ . But it seems impossible to keep up the play on words. "I have given," says Rogers, "a slightly different turn to the passage."

About ten or twelve months before the production of this play, the Melians had been reduced by famine; for their terrible fate see Thuc. v. 89-116.

THE BIRDS, 201-225

PEI. But how to call them hither?

ноо. That's soon done.

I've but to step within the coppice here, And wake my sleeping nightingale, and then We'll call them, both together. Bless the birds, When once they hear our voices, they'll comerunning.

PEI. You darling bird, now don't delay one instant.
O I beseech you get at once within
Your little copse, and wake the nightingale!

(The Hoopoe's Serenade.)

HOO. Awake, my mate! Shake off thy slumbers, and clear and strong Let loose the floods of thy glorious song, The sacred dirge of thy mouth divine For sore-wept Itys, thy child and mine; Thy tender trillings his name prolong With the liquid note of thy tawny throat; a Through the leafy curls of the woodbine sweet The pure sound mounts to the heavenly seat. And Phoebus, lord of the golden hair, As he lists to thy wild plaint echoing there, Draws answering strains from his ivoried lyre, Till he stirs the dance of the heavenly choir. And calls from the blessed lips on high Of immortal Gods, a divine reply To the tones of thy witching melody.

(The sound of a flute is heard within, imitating the nightingale's song.)

EU. O Zeus and King, the little birdie's voice!
O how its sweetness honied all the copse!

PEI. Hi!

EU. Well?

Why?

PEI.

The Hoopoe here

Is going to favour us with another song.

(The Bird-call by the Hoopoe and Nightingale conjointly; the Nightingale's song being imitated, as before, by the flute.)

ноо. Whoop-ho! Whoop-ho!

Whoop-hoop-hoop-hoop-ho ! Hoi! Hoi! Hoi! Come, come, come, come!

(The land-birds.)

Come hither any bird with plumage like my own; Come hither ye that batten on the acres newly sown, On the acres by the farmer neatly sown;

And the myriad tribes that feed on the barley and the seed.

The tribes that lightly fly, giving out a gentle cry; And ye who round the clod, in the furrow-riven sod, With voices sweet and low, twitter flitter to and fro,

Singing tio, tio, tio, tiotinx;

And ye who in the gardens a pleasant harvest glean, Lurking in the branches of the ivy ever green; Andye who top the mountains with gay and airy flight; And ye who in the olive and the arbutus delight; Come hither one and all, come flying to our call, Triotó, triotó, totobrinx.

(The marsh-birds.)

Ye that snap up the gnats, shrilly voiced,<sup>a</sup>
Mid the deep water-glens of the fens,

Or on Marathon's expanse haunt the lea, fair to see, Or career o'er the swamps, dewy-moist,

And the bird with the gay mottled plumes, come away, Francolin! Francolin! come away!

(The sea-birds.)

Surely not a peacock, is it?

THE BIRDS, 348-366

A rare dainty pasture for my beak.

For never shall be found any distant spot of ground, Or shadowy mountain covert, or foamy Ocean wave, Or cloud in Ether floating, which these reprobates shall save

From the doom that upon them I will wreak. On then, on, my flying squadrons, now's the time to tear and bite,

Tarry ye not an instant longer.

Brigadier, advance our right.

EU. Here it comes! I'm off, confound them.

Fool, why can't you remain with me? PEI.

EU. What! that these may tear and rend me?

How can you hope from birds to flee? PEI.

EU. Truly, I haven't the least idea.

Then it is I the affair must guide. PEI. Seize we a pot a and, the charge awaiting,

You would slay two worthy persons, kinsmen, clansmen, of my mate? <sup>a</sup> Men who never sought to harm you, would you tear and lacerate?

CH. Why, I wonder, should we spare them, more than ravening beasts of prey?

Shall we ever find, for vengeance, enemies more rank than they?

ноо. Enemies, I grant, by nature, very friends in heart and will: Here they come with kindly purpose, useful lessons to instil.

CH. What, they come with words of friendship?

What, you really then suppose
They will teach us useful lessons, they our fathers' fathers' foes?

ноо. Yet to clever folk a foeman very useful hints may show;

Thus, that foresight brings us safety,

from a friend we ne'er should know, But the truth is forced upon us, very quickly, by a foe.

Hence it is that all the Cities,

taught by foe, and not by friend,

Learn to build them ships of battle, and their lofty walls extend;

So by this, a foeman's, teaching children, home, and wealth defend.

сн. Well, I really think 'tis better that their errand we should know;

I admit that something useful

may be taught us by a foe

PEI. (to Eu.) Now their anger grows more slack;

now we had better just draw back.

saw a Kite in the air; so I wallow a Then raising my eyne from my posture supine, I give such a gulp that I swallow O what but an obol I've got in my mouth, and am forced to return empty-handed. PEI. And the whole of Phoenice and Egypt was erst by a masterful Cuckoo commanded. When his loud cuckoo-cry was resounding on high, at once the Phoenicians would leap All hands to the plain, rich-waving with grain, their wheat and their barley to reap. EU. So that's why we cry to the circumcised Hi ! Cuckoo! To the plain! Cuckoo! PEI. And whene'er in the cities of Hellas a chief to honour and dignity grew, Menelaus or King Agamemnon perchance, your rule was so firm and decided That a bird on his sceptre would perch, to partake of the gifts for his Lordship provided. EU. Now of that I declare I was never aware: and I oft have been filled with amaze, When Priam so noble and stately appeared, with a bird, in the Tragedy-plays. But the bird was no doubt for the gifts looking out, to Lysicrates d brought on the sly. PEI.  $^a$  A bird was often represented on the helmet of a deity ; as the eagle is proper for Zeus, the falcon will do for Apollo.

THE BIRDS, 515-535

Stands wearing, as Royalty's emblem and badge, an Eagle erect on his head, Our Lady an owl, and Apollo forsooth, as a lackey, a falcon a instead.

U. By Demeter, 'tis true; that is just what they do; but tell me the reason, I pray.

EI. That the bird may be ready and able, whene'er the sacrificed inwards we lay,

As custom demands, in the deity's hands, to seize before Zeus on the fare. And none by the Gods, but all by the Birds, were accustomed aforetime to swear:

And Lampon b will vow by the Goose even now, whenever he's going to cheat you:

So holy and mighty they deemed you of old,

with so deep a respect did they treat you!

Now they treat you as knaves,

and as fools, and as slaves;

Yea they pelt you as though ye were mad.

No safety for you can the Temples ensure,
For the bird-catcher sets his nooses and nets,
And his traps, and his toils, and his bait, and his lure,
And his lime-covered rods in the shrine of the Gods!

Then he takes you, and sets you for sale in the lump; And the customers, buying, come poking and prying

And twitching and trying,
To feel if your bodies are tender and plump.
And if they decide on your flesh to sup
They don't just roast you and serve you up,
But over your bodies, as prone ye lie,
They grate their cheese and their silphium too,

And oil and vinegar add, Then a gravy, luscious and rich, they brew,

And pour it in soft warm streams o'er you, As though ye were carrion noisome and dry.

CH. O man, 'tis indeed a most pitiful tale a Thou hast brought to our ears; and I can but bewai! Our fathers' demerit,

Who born such an Empire as this to inherit Have lost it, have lost it, for me!

But now thou art come, by good Fortune's decree, Our Saviour to be,

And under thy charge, whatsoever befall,

I will place my own self, and my nestlings, and all.

Now therefore do you tell us what we must do; since life is not worth our retaining.

Unless we be Lords of the world as before,

our ancient dominion regaining.

PEI. Then first I propose that the Air ye enclose, and the space 'twixt the Earth and the sky,

Encircling it all with a brick-builded wall,

like Babylon's, solid and high; b

And there you must place the abode of your race, and make them one State, and one nation.

EU. O Porphyrion! O Cebriones!

You will clap on their dissolute persons a seal,

And then let another ambassador-bird

Now therefore assort and combine

Each God with a bird, whichever will best

The Eagle soared far above the rest, but when he had attained the highest point to which he could by any possibility ascend, a little goldencrested wren which had nestled unperceived in his plumage, spread its tiny wings and flew up a few yards higher. # THE BIRDS, 600-617

To men ye shall show, for the secret ye know.

How often a man will declare,

There is no one who knows where my treasures repose, if it be not a bird of the air.a

EU. My galley may go; I will buy me a hoe, and dig for the crock and the casket.

сн. But Health, I opine, is a blessing divine;

can we give it to men if they ask it?

PEI. If they've plenty of wealth, they'll have plenty of health;

ye may rest quite assured that they will.

Did you ever hear tell of a man that was well,

when faring remarkably ill?

сн. Long life 'tis Olympus alone can bestow;

so can men live as long as before?

Must they die in their youth?

Die? No! why in truth their lives by three hundred or more
New years ve will lengthen.

CH. Why, whence will they come?

PEI. From your own inexhaustible store.
What! dost thou not know that the noisy-tongued crow lives five generations of men?

EU. O fie! it is plain they are fitter to reign than the Gods; let us have them again.

PEI. Ay fitter by far!

No need for their sakes to erect and adorn

Great temples of marble with portals of gold.

Enough for the birds on the brake and the thorn

And the evergreen oak their receptions to hold.

Or if any are noble, and courtly, and fine,

The tree of the olive will serve for their shrine.

No need, when a blessing we seek, to repair
To Delphi or Ammon, and sacrifice there;
We will under an olive or arbutus stand
With a present of barley and wheat,
And piously lifting our heart and our hand
The birds for a boon we'll entreat,
And the boon shall be ours, and our suit weshall gain
At the cost of a few little handfuls of grain.

A spirit so lofty and rare
Thy words have within me excited,
That I lift up my soul, and I swear
That if Thou wilt with Me be united
In bonds that are holy and true
And honest and just and sincere,
If our hearts are attuned to one song,
We will march on the Gods without fear;
The sceptre—my sceptre, my due,—
They shall not be handling it long!
So all that by muscle and strength can be done.

THE BIRDS, 642-659

Or e'er we start, visit this nest of mine, My bits of things, my little sticks and straws; And tell me what your names are.

PEI. That's soon done.

My name is Peisthetaerus.

HOO. And your friend's?

PEI. Euclpides of Crio.a

ноо. Well, ye are both

Heartily welcome.

PEI. Thank you.

HOO. Come ye in.

PEI. Aye, come we in; you, please, precede us.

PEI. But—dear! what was it? step you back a moment.

O yes,—but tell us, how can he and I

Consort with you, we wingless and you winged? Hoo. Why, very well.

PEI. Nay, but in Aesop's fables

There's something, mind you, told about the fox How ill it fared, consorting with an eagle.

ноо. O never fear; for there's a little root

Which when ye have eaten, ye will both be winged.

PEI. That being so, we'll enter. Xanthias there, And Manodorus, bring along the traps.

CH. O stay, and O stay!

ноо. Why what ails you to-day?

CH. Take the gentlemen in, and regale them, we say
But O for the nightingale peerless in song, who chants in the choir of the Muses her lay;

by Archilochus: Schol. An Eagle and a Fox had sworn friendship. The Eagle built her eyry in a lofty tree; the Fox littered in a brake at the foot, and then one day the Eagle carried off the cubs to feed her eaglets.

Our sweetest and best, fetch her out of the nest, and leave her awhile with the Chorus to play.

PEI. O do, by Zeus, grant them this one request; Fetch out the little warbler from the reeds.

EU. Yes, fetch her out by all the Gods, that so We too may gaze upon the nightingale.

Hoo. Well, if you wish it, so we'll have it. Procne, Come hither, dear, and let the strangers see you.

PEI. Zeus, what a darling lovely little bird! How fair, and tender!

EU. O the little love,

Wouldn't I like to be her mate this instant! PEI. And O the gold she is wearing, like a girl.

EU. Upon my word, I've half a mind to kiss her!

PEI. Kiss her, you fool! Her beak's a pair of spits.

Eu. But I would treat her like an egg, and strip
The egg-shell from her poll, and kiss her so.

Hoo. Come, go we in.

PEI. Lead on, and luck go with us.

CH. O darling! O tawny-throat!

Love, whom I love the best,

Dearer than all the rest,

Playmate and partner in

All my soft lays,

Thou art come! Thou art come!

Thou hast dawned on my gaze, I have heard thy sweet note, Nightingále! Nightingále!

THE BIRDS, 685-698

Ye men who are dimly existing below,

who perish and fade as the leaf,

Pale, woebegone, shadowlike, spiritless folk,

life feeble and wingless and brief,

Frail castings in clay, who are gone in a day,

like a dream full of sorrow and sighing,

Come listen with care to the Birds of the air,

the ageless, the deathless, who flying

In the joy and the freshness of Ether, are wont to muse upon wisdom undying.

We will tell you of things transcendental; of Springs and of Rivers the mighty upheaval;

The nature of Birds; and the birth of the Gods:

and of Chaos and Darkness primeval.<sup>a</sup> When this ye shall know, let old Prodicus <sup>b</sup> go,

and be hanged without hope of reprieval.

THERE WAS Chaos at first, and Darkness, and Night, and Tartarus vasty and dismalc;

But the Earth was not there, nor the Sky, nor the Air, till at length in the bosom abysmal

Of Darkness an egg, from the whirlwind conceived, was laid by the sable-plumed Night.

And out of that egg, as the Seasons revolved, sprang Love, the entrancing, the bright,d

Love brilliant and bold with his pinions of gold, like a whirlwind, refulgent and sparkling!

Love hatched us, commingling in Tartarus wide,

with Chaos, the murky, the darkling, counterpart in Hesiod. We must seek its origin, as Beck observes, in the old Orphic legends, which taught that from a mystic egg, representing the undeveloped universe, sprang Φάνης, the prototype of Έρως, the creator of all things, χρυσείαις πτερύγεσσι φορεύμενος ένθα καὶ ένθα. From the same source comes the ἀπείροσι κόλποις (in the Orphic hymns ἀπειρεσίοις ὑπὸ κόλποις) mentioned two lines above": R.

THE BIRDS, 699-713

And brought us above, as the firstlings of love, and first to the light we ascended.a

There was never a race of Immortals at all till Love had the universe blended;

Then all things commingling together in love,

there arose the fair Earth, and the Sky,

And the limitless Sea; and the race of the Gods,

the Blessed, who never shall die.

So we than the Blessed are older by far;

and abundance of proof is existing

That we are the children of Love, for we fly, unfortunate lovers assisting.

And many a man who has found, to his cost,

that his powers of persuasion have failed,

And his loves have abjured him for ever, again

by the power of the Birds has prevailed;

For the gift of a quail, or a Porphyry rail,

or a Persian, or goose, will regain them.

And the chiefest of blessings ye mortals enjoy,

by the help of the Birds ye obtain them.

'Tis from us that the signs of the Seasons in turn,

Spring, Winter, and Autumn are known.

When to Libya the crane flies clanging again,

it is time for the seed to be sown,b

And the skipper may hang up his rudder awhile,c and sleep after all his exertions,

And Orestes d may weave him a wrap to be warm

when he's out on his thievish excursions.

Then cometh the kite, with its hovering flight, of the advent of Spring to tell,

THE BIRDS, 714-733

And the Spring sheep-shearing begins; and next, your woollen attire you sell,

And buy you a lighter and daintier garb,

when you note the return of the swallow.

Thus your Ammon, Dodona, and Delphi are we;

we are also your Phoebus Apollo.a

For whatever you do, if a trade you pursue, or goods in the market are buying,

Or the wedding attend of a neighbour and friend,

first you look to the Birds and their flying.

And whene'er you of omen or augury speak,

'tis a bird you are always repeating;

A Rumour's a bird, and a sneeze is a bird,

and so is a word or a meeting,b

A servant's a bird, and an ass is a bird.

It must therefore assuredly follow That the Birds are to you (I protest it is true) your prophetic divining Apollo.

Then take us for Gods, as is proper and fit,
And Muses Prophetic ye'll have at your call
Spring, winter, and summer, and autumn and all.c
And we won't run away from your worship, and sit Up above in the clouds, very stately and grand,
Like Zeus in his tempers: but always at hand
Health and wealth we'll bestow, as the formula runs,
On yourselves, and your sons, and the sons of your sons: 4

And happiness, plenty, and peace shall belong To you all; and the revel, the dance, and the song, And laughter, and youth, and the milk of the birds

Is not then a suit of feathers quite the very best of things?

Why, Diitrephes a was chosen,

though he had but wicker wings,

First a Captain, then a Colonel, unintelligible, ἐπίτηδες ἀδιαπίητα, as Symmachus says in the scholium. He claims to have solved the problem of squaring the circle; whilst in πνιγείς and διαβήτης there appears to be some reminiscence of Clouds, 96, 178. However the diagram which he explains to Peisthetaerus seems to be to the following effect. He has with him several καπόνες, of which one at least is flexible. Drawing a circle with a pair of compasses he lays the flexible καπών over the circumference, then with the straight rods he makes radii extending from the centre to, and prolonged beyond, the circumference. These are the streets which run from the market-place to, and through, the city gates": R.

We, the Birds, will give a notice,

we proclaim with right good will,

Sirs, Philocrates, Sparrovian,

whosoever of you kill,

Shall receive, reward, one talent,

if alive you bring him, four;

Him who strings and sells the finches,

Shamefully entreats the blackbirds,

thrusting feathers up their noses.

Pigeons too the rascal catches, keeps and meres them up with care,

Makes them labour as decoy-birds,

tethered underneath a snare.

Such the notice we would give you.

And we wish you all to know,

Who are keeping birds in cages,

you had better let them go.

Else the Birds will surely catch you,

and yourselves in turn employ,

Tied and tethered up securely,

other rascals to decov.

O the happy clan of birds
Clad in feather;
Needing not a woollen vest in Wintry weather;
Heeding not the warm far-flashing
Summer ray,
For within the leafy bosoms
Of the flowery meads I stay,

When the Chirruper in ecstasy is shrilling forth his tune,

Maddened with the sunshine, and the rapture of the noon.

And I winter in the caverns'

Hollow spaces,

With the happy Oreads playing; and in Spring I crop the virgin flowers of the myrtles white and tender, Dainties that are fashioned in the gardens of the Graces.

Now we wish to tell the Judges,

in a friendly sort of way,

The bricks, no mason, carpenter was there;
Their own hands wrought it, marvellous to see.

With great foundation-stones they had swallowed

And these the corn-crakes fashioned with their beaks. Ten thousand storks were carrying up the bricks; <sup>c</sup> And lapwings helped, and the other water-birds, To bring the water up into the air.

Well, well, go on; who was it finished off The great wall's woodwork?

Excellent workmen, hewing with huge beaks
Gate-timber; and the uproar as they hewed
Was like an arsenal when ships are building.
Now every gateway has its gate, fast-barred,
And watched the whole way round; and birds are pacing

Their beats, and carrying bells, and everywhere The guards are stationed, and the beacons blaze On every tower. But I must hurry off And wash myself. You, manage what remains.

CH. O man, what ails you? Do you feel surprised
To hear the building has been built so soon?

PEI. By all the Gods I do; and well I may.
In very truth it seems to me like—lies.
But see! a guard, a messenger from thence

Is running towards us with a war-dance blook! GUARD. Hallo! Hallo! Hallo! Hallo!

PEI. Why, what's up now?

GUARD. A terrible thing has happened.

One of the Gods, of Zeus's Gods, has just, Giving our jackdaw sentinels the slip, Shot through the gates and flown into the air.

PEI. A dreadful deed! A wicked scandalous deed! d
Which of the Gods?

GUARD. We know not. Wings he had,

So much we know.

PEI. Ye should have sent at once The civic guard in hot pursuit.

There is a play on πελεκάω, "to hew."
 A dance of men in full armour.
 Enter a guard.

GUARD. We sent

The mounted archers, a thirty thousand falcons, All with their talons curved, in fighting trim, Hawk, buzzard, vulture, eagle, eagle-owl. Yea, Ether vibrates with the whizz and whirr Of beating pinions, as they seek the God. Ay, and he's near methinks; he's very near; He's somewhere here.

A sling, a sling, I say!

Arrows and bows! Fall in, my merrymen all!

Shoot, smite, be resolute. A sling! a sling!

CH. War is begun, inexpressive war,
War is begun twixt the Gods and me!
Look out, look out, through the cloud-wrapt air
Which erst the Darkness of Erebus b bare,
Lest a God slip by, and we fail to see.
Glance eager-eyed on every side,
For class at hand the winged sound I hear

For close at hand the winged sound I hear Of some Immortal hurtling through the Sky.

Stop where you are! keep quiet! stay! remain!
Who, what, whence are you? where do you come

Fly up, some buzzard there, PEI. Fly up, and seize her. Me! Seize ME, do vou say? What the plague's this? You'll find to your cost, directly. IR. Well now, this passes! Answer! By what gates PEI. ## THE BIRDS, 1314-1341

If men in such numbers invade us.

PEI. So fortune continue to aid us.

CH. O, the love of my City the world has enthralled!

PEI. (to Manes) Bring quicker the baskets they're packing

ch. For in what is it lacking

That a man for his home can require?

Here is Wisdom, and Wit, and each exquisite Grace,

And here the unruffled, benevolent face

Of Quiet, and loving Desire.

PEI. Why, what a lazy loon are you!

Come, move a little faster, do.

CH. O see that he brings me a basket of wings.

Rush out in a whirlwind of passion, And wallop him, after this fashion.

For the rogue is as slow as a donkey to go.

PEI. No pluck has your Manes, 'tis true.

CH. But now 'tis for you

The wings in due order to set;

Both the musical wings, and the wings of the seers,

And the wings of the sea, that as each one appears, The wings that he wants you can get.

PEI. O, by the kestrels, I can't keep my hands From banging you, you lazy, crazy oaf.<sup>a</sup>

SIRE-STRIKER (singing). O that I might as an eagle be,

Flying, flying, flying, flying

Over the surge of the untilled sea!

PEI. Not false, methinks, the tale our envoy told us.

For here comes one whose song is all of eagles.

THE BIRDS, 1342-1367

s.-s. Fie on it!

There's nothing in this world so sweet as flying; I've quite a passion for these same bird-laws. In fact I'm gone bird-mad, and fly, and long To dwell with you, and hunger for your laws.

PEI. Which of our laws? for birds have many laws.

s.-s. All! All! but most of all that jolly law
Which lets a youngster throttle and beat his father.

PEI. Aye, if a cockerel beat his father here, We do indeed account him quite a—Man.

s.-s. That's why I moved up hither and would fain Throttle my father and get all he has.

PEI. But there's an ancient law among the birds, You'll find it in the tablets a of the storks; When the old stork has brought his storklings up, And all are fully fledged for flight, then they Must in their turn maintain the stork their father.

s.-s. A jolly lot of good I've gained by coming,
If now I've got to feed my father too!

PEI. Nay, my poor boy, you came here well-disposed,
And so I'll rig you like an orphan bird.
And here's a new suggestion, not a bad one,
But what I learnt myself when I was young.
Don't beat your father, lad; but take this wing,
And grasp this spur of battle in your hand,
And think this crest a game-cock's martial comb.
Now march, keep guard, live on your soldier's pay, clamation than which none could be nobler, none a greater incentive to patriotic virtue, saying, These are the orphans of brave men who fell in battle, valiantly fighting in their country's cause. Wherefore the City of Athens has maintained them during their boyhood, and now having armed them in full panoply dismisses them with her blessing to their homes, and invites them to a front seat,  $\kappa a \lambda \epsilon \hat{\iota} \ els \ \pi \rho o \epsilon \hat{\rho} \rho a r$ , in the Theatre,' Aesch. ### THE BIRDS, 1368-1394

And let your father be. If you want fighting, Fly off to Thraceward regions, and fight there. s.-s. By Dionysus, I believe you're right.

I'll do it too.

You'll show your sense, by Zeus! a PEI.

CINESIAS (singing). On the lightest of wings I am soaring on high.

Lightly from measure to measure I fly: PEI. Bless me, this creature wants a pack of wings! CI. (singing) And ever the new I am flitting to find, With timorless body, and timorless mind.

PEI. We clasp Cinesias, man of linden-wyth. Why in the world have you whirled your splay foot hither?

CI. (singing) To be a bird, a bird, I long, A nightingale of thrilling song.

PEI. O stop that singing; prithee speak in prose.

ci. O give me wings, that I may soar on high, And pluck poetic fancies from the clouds, Wild as the whirling winds, and driving snows.

PEI. What, do you pluck your fancies from the clouds?

Why our whole trade depends upon the clouds; What are our noblest dithyrambs but things Of air, and mist, and purple-gleaming depths, And feathery whirlwings? You shall hear, and judge.

PEI. No, no, I won't.

By Heracles you shall. CI.

I'll go through all the air, dear friend, for you. (Singing) Shadowy visions of Wing-spreading, air-treading, Taper-necked birds.

As thin, both he and his verses, as the inner bark of the lime-tree. rear refers to his musical innovations.

THE BIRDS, 1394-1419

PEI. Steady, there!

CI. (*inging) Bounding along on the path to the seas,
Fain would I float on the stream of the breeze.

PEI. O by the Powers, I'll stop your streams and breezes.

CI. (singing) First do I stray on a southerly way;

Then to the northward my body I bear, Cutting a harbourless furrow of air.a

A nice trick that, a pleasant trick, old man.
PEI. O you don't like being feathery-whirl-winged, do you?

cr. That's how you treat the Cyclian-chorus-trainer

For whose possession all the tribes compete! PEI. Well, will you stop and train a chorus here

CI. You're jeering me, that's plain.
But I won't stop, be sure of that, until

I get me wings, and peragrate the air.<sup>d</sup> sycophant (singing). Who be these on varied wing, birds who have not anything?

O tell me, swallow, tell me, tell me true,

O long-winged bird, O bird of varied hue!

PEI. Come, it's no joke, this plague that's broken out; Here comes another, warbling like the rest.

sy. (singing) Again I ask thee, tell me, tell me true,

O long-winged bird, O bird of varied hue! PEI. At his own cloak his catch appears to point;

More than one swallow that requires, I'm thinking.

sy. Which is the man that wings the visitors?

PEI. He stands before you. What do you please to want?

f His threadbare cloak shows that he sadly needs the warm spring weather, but "one swallow will not make spring" (μία χελιδών ἔαρ οὐ ποιεί).

PEI. You'll summon them more cleverly, I suppose, To the tune of wings <sup>a</sup>?

Sy.

No, but to dodge the pirates,
I'll then come flying homeward with the cranes,
First swallowing down a lot of suits for ballast.

PEI. Is this your business? you, a sturdy youngster, Live by informing on the stranger-folk?

sy. What can I do? I never learnt to dig.

PEI. O, but by Zeus, there's many an honest calling Whence men like you can earn a livelihood, By means more suitable than hatching suits.

sy. Come, come, no preaching; wing me, wing me, please.

PEI. I wing you now by talking.

sy. What, by talk

Can you wing men?

PEI. Undoubtedly. By talk
All men are winged.

sy. All!

Talk to the children, saying things like these,
"Dittephes has winged my youngster so
By specious talk, he's all for chariot-driving."

"Aye," says another, " and that boy of mine Flutters his mings at every Tragic Play."

sv. So then by talk they are winged.

Through talk the mind flutters and soars aloft,
And all the man takes wing. And so even now
I wish to turn you, winging you by talk,
To some more honest trade.

sy. But I pon't wish.

PEI. How then?

sy. I'll not disgrace my bringing up.
I'll ply the trade my father's fathers plied.
So wing me, please, with light quick-darting wings
Falcon's or kestrel's, so I'll serve my writs
Abroad on strangers; then accuse them here;
Then dart back there again.

PEI. I understand.

So when they come, they'll find the suit decided,
And payment ordered.

sv. Right! you understand.

PEI. And while they're sailing hither you'll fly there, And seize their goods for payment.

sy. That's the trick! Round like a top I'll whizz.

A whipping-top; and here by Zeus I've got Fine Corcyraean a wings to set you whizzing.

sy. O, it's a whip!

PEI. Nay, friend, a pair of wings,

To set you spinning round and round to-day.

(Striking him.)

Wobble away, you most confounded rascal!
I'll make you spin! I'll law-perverting-trick you!
Now let us gather up the wings and go.

Over sea and land, espying

Many a wonder strange and new.

First, a tree of monstrous girth,

Tall and stout, yet nothing worth,

For 'tis rotten through and through;

It has got no heart, and we Heard it called "Cleonymus-tree."

In the spring it blooms gigantic,

Fig-traducing, sycophantic,

Yet in falling leaf-time yields

Nothing but a fall of shields

Next a spot by darkness skirted,
Spot, by every light deserted,
Lone and gloomy, we descried.
There the human and divine,
Men with heroes, mix and dine
Freely, save at even-tide.
Tis not safe for mortal men
To encounter heroes then.
Then the great Orestes, looming
Vast and awful through the glooming,
On their right a stroke delivering,
Leaves them palsied, stript, and shivering.

THE BIRDS, 1514-1539

PEI. Good gracious me! since when?

PR. Since first you built your city in the air.
For never from that hour does mortal bring Burnt-offerings to the Gods, or savoury steam Ascend to heaven from flesh of victims slain.
So now we fast a Thesmophorian fast,<sup>a</sup>
No altars burning; and the Barbarous Gods
Half-starved, and gibbering like Illyrians, vow
That they'll come marching down on Zeus, unless
He gets the marts reopened, and the bits
Of savoury inwards introduced once more.

PEI. What, are there really other Gods, Barbarians, Up above by ou?

PR. Barbarians? Yes; thence comes
The ancestral God of Execestides.

PEI. And what's the name of these Barbarian Gods?

PR. The name? Triballians.º

PEI. Aye, I understand.
Tis from that quarter Tribulation comes.

PR. Exactly so. And now I tell you this;
Envoys will soon be here to treat for peace,
Sent down by Zeus and those Triballians there.
But make no peace, mind that, unless king Zeus
Restores the sceptre to the Birds again,
And gives yourself Miss Sovereignty to wife.

PEI. And who's Miss Sovereignty?

The loveliest girl.

Tis she who keeps the thunderbolts of Zeus,
And all his stores,—good counsels, happy laws,

 $^{b}$  The Athenians used  $\delta r\omega$  in a geographical sense to indicate the north.

A fierce Thracian tribe. A few years before they had defeated and slain Sitalces (Thuc. iv. 101), perhaps driven by famine, like the "Barbarous Gods."

Sound common sense, dockyards, abusive speech, All his three-obols, and the man who pays them.<sup>a</sup> PEI. Then she keeps EVERYTHING!

PR. Of course she does.

Win her from Zeus, and you'll have EVERYTHING. I hastened here that I might tell you this, You know I am always well-disposed to men.

PEI. Aye, but for you we could not fry our fish.

PR. And I hate every God, you know that, don't you?

PEI. Yes, hatred of the Gods; you always felt it.

PR. A regular Timon b! but 'tis time to go; Let's have the umbrella; then, if Zeus perceives me, He'll think I'm following the Basket-bearer.c PEI. Here, take the chair, and act the Chair-girl too.

CH. Next we saw a sight appalling,
Socrates, unwashed, was calling
Spirits from the lake below, (Twas on that enchanted ground
Where the Shadow-feet are found).
There Peisander came to know
If the spirit cowards lack Socrates could conjure back;
Then a camel-lamb he slew,
Like Odysseus, but withdrew,

Aelian says that others walked beside these, holding sunshades to protect them.

A mythical tribe, who used their huge feet to shade their heads.

The reference is to Hom. Od. xi. 35-51 where Odysseus summons the souls of the dead by slaying sheep and letting the blood pour into a trench. Here Peisander who never had any "spirit"  $(\psi \nu \chi \dot{\eta})$  comes to see if Socrates can get it back for him, but cannot go through with the ordeal, and leaves the blood to the dried-up, ghost-like Chaerephon (cf. 1296).

THE BIRDS, 1586-1615

O welcome, Heracles! What brings you hither?

We are envoys, sent POS.

Down by the Gods to settle terms of peace. SERVANT. There's no more oil remaining in the flask. HE. O dear! and bird's-flesh should be rich and glistering. Pos. We Gods gain nothing by the war; and you, Think what ye'll get by being friends with us: Rain-water in the pools, and halcyon days Shall be your perquisites the whole year through. We've ample powers to settle on these terms.

PEI. It was not we who ever wished for war. And now, if even now ye come prepared

With fair proposals, ye will find us ready To treat for peace. What I call fair is this; Let Zeus restore the sceptre to the birds. And all make friends. If we accept this offer,

I ask the envoys in to share our banquet. HE. I'm altogether satisfied, and vote-

POS. (interrupting)

What, wretch? A fool and glutton, that's what you are! What! would you rob your father of his kingdom?

PEI. Ave, say you so? Why, ye'll be mightier far, Ye Gods above, if Birds bear rule below. Now men go skulking underneath the clouds, And swear false oaths, and call the Gods to witness. But when ye've got the Birds for your allies, If a man swear by the Raven and by Zeus, The Raven will come by, and unawares Fly up, and swoop, and peck the perjurer's eye out.

But the young girl, Miss Sovereignty, he must

What, are we going to fight about one woman? pos. What shall we do?

Do? Come to terms at once. HE.

Pos. You oaf, he's gulling you, and you can't see it. Well, it's yourself you are ruining. If Zeus Restore the kingdom to the Birds, and die, You'll be a pauper. You are the one to get Whatever money Zeus may leave behind him.

PEI. O! O! the way he's trying to cozen you! Hist, step aside, I want to whisper something. Your uncle's fooling you, poor dupe. By law No shred of all your father's money falls To you. Why, you're a bastard, you're not heir.

HE. Eh! What? A bastard? I?

Of course you are. PEI.

Your mother was an alien. Bless the fool, How did you think Athene could be "Heiress," (Being a girl), if she had lawful brethren?

HE. Well, but suppose my father leaves me all As bastard's heritage?

The law won't let him. PEI. Poseidon here, who now excites you on, Will be the first to claim the money then. As lawful brother, and your father's heir.

Why here, I'll read you Solon's law about it.

" A bastard is to have no right of inheritance, if there be lawful children. And if there be no lawful children, the goods are to fall to the next of kin." b

HE. What! none of all my father's goods to fall To me?

Or "half-breed," his mother being a mortal; for in Attic law, anyone was votos whose mother was not a genuine Athenian. b Probably the words of Solon's law: the quotation is prose.

CH. Back with you! out with you! off with you! up with you!

Flying around

Welcome the Blessed with blessedness crowned. O! O! for the youth and the beauty, O! Well hast thou wed for the town of the Birds.

Great are the blessings, and mighty, and wonderful,
Which through his favour our nation possesses.
Welcome them back, both himself and Miss Sovereignty,

Welcome with nuptial and bridal addresses.

Mid just such a song hymenaean Aforetime the Destinies led The King of the thrones empyréan, The Ruler of Gods, to the bed Of Hera his beautiful bride. Hymen, O Hymenaeus!

And Love, with his pinions of gold, Came driving, all blooming and spruce, As groomsman and squire to behold The wedding of Hera and Zeus, Of Zeus and his beautiful bride. Hymen, O Hymenaeus! Hymen, O Hymenaeus!

PET. I delight in your hymns, I delight in your songs; Your words I admire.

CH. Now sing of the trophies he brings us from Heaven, The earth-crashing thunders, deadly and dire, And the lightning's angry flashes of fire, And the dread white bolt of the levin.<sup>a</sup>

THE BIRDS, 1748-1765

Blaze of the lightning, so terribly beautiful, Golden and grand!

Fire-flashing javelin, glittering ever in

Earth-crashing thunder, the hoarsely resounding, the Bringer of showers!

He is your Master, 'tis he that is shaking the Earth with your powers!

All that was Zeus's of old Now is our hero's alone; Sovereignty, fair to behold, Partner of Zeus on his throne, Now is for ever his own. Hymen, O Hymenaeus!

PEI. Now follow on, dear feathered tribes,
To see us wed, to see us wed;
Mount up to Zeus's golden floor,
And nuptial bed, and nuptial bed.
And O, my darling, reach thine hand,
And take my wing and dance with me,
And I will lightly bear thee up,
And carry thee, and carry thee

CH. Raise the joyous Paean-cry,
Raise the song of Victory.
Io Paean, alalalae,
Mightiest of the Powers, to thee!

INTRODUCTION

The Frogs was produced at the Lenaean festival of 405 B.C., about six months after the great naval victory of Arginusae; about four after the death of Euripides; and about two after that of Sophocles. It carried off the prize, the Muses of Phrynichus being second and the Cleophon of Plato third, and "at once took its position, which has never since been challenged, among the masterpieces of the Athenian drama." But it also achieved "the apparently unique distinction of being acted a second time, and at this second representation the poet was crowned, not with the usual wreath of Bacchic ivy, but with a wreath made from Athene's sacred olive, an honour reserved for citizens who were deemed to have rendered important services to Athene's city."

This exceptional honour was accorded "not for its wit and humour, nor yet for what to modern readers constitutes its pre-eminent attraction, the literary contest between Aeschylus and Euripides," but "for the lofty strain of patriotism which breathed through all its political allusions, and was especially felt in the advice tendered, obviously with some misgiving as to the spirit in which the audience would receive it, in the epirrhema to the parabasis (686-705)." a There the poet appeals to the Athenian people to remember how they had recently enfranchized the slaves who had fought "one battle" (693) at Arginusae and not to leave men, who through "one mishap" (699) had been implicated in the oligarchical schemes of the Four Hundred five or six years before, with no civic rights whatever, and "we are told on the authority of Dicaearchus, a writer of the very greatest weight on such matters, that it was this very appeal which won the admiration of the public, and obtained for the play the honour of a second representation." b

The Chorus are "the Blessed Mystics, those who had on earth been initiated into the Eleusinian mysteries, and had led a holy and virtuous life in accordance with the doctrines therein inculcated." They do not enter at once, but are first heard behind the scenes "chanting the melodious songs of the dead frogs, from whom the comedy derives its name." When they do enter later they "come in singing a series of hymns and songs, which are not mere unconnected lyrics, but are a continuous presentation of the earlier stages of their annual procession to Eleusis."

The scene shows the house of Heracles in the background. There enter two travellers: Dionysus on foot, in his customary yellow robe and buskins but also with the club and lion's skin of Heracles, and his servant Xanthias on a donkey, carrying the luggage on a pole over his shoulder.

DI. Teach me to dine!

xa. But never a word of me.

DI. But tell me truly—'twas for this I came Dressed up to mimic you—what friends received
And entertained you when you went below
To bring back Cerberus, in case I need them.
And tell me too the havens, fountains, shops,
Roads, resting-places, stews, refreshment-rooms,
Towns, lodgings, hostesses, with whom were found
The fewest bugs.

But never a word of me.

HE. You are really game to go?

O drop that, can't you?

And tell me this: of all the roads you know
Which is the quickest way to get to Hades?
I want one not too warm, nor yet too cold.

HE. Which shall I tell you first? which shall it be?
There's one by rope and bench: you launch away
And—hang yourself.

Dr. No thank you: that's too stifling.

The third is an expansion of the famous line in the Hippolytus (612),  $\dot{\eta}$  γλῶσσ' ὁμώμοχ',  $\dot{\eta}$  δὲ φρὴν ἀνώμοτος. It was a common practice "to swear upon the sacrifice."

A parody, says the Scholiast, of a line in Euripides, μη τὸν ἐμῶν οἴκει νοῦν· ἐγὼ γὰρ ἀρκέσω, where the first words mean "do not take upon yourself to deliver my sentiments."

* καὶ σύ γε: even you; even the pleasure-loving and effeminate

Dionysus.

" тетоция refers (1) to the road="well-worn." and (2)

a τετριμμένη refers (1) to the road="well-worn," and (2) to the hemlock which was "pounded" in a mortar to extract the juice. Cf. Plato, Phaedo, 117 D ενεγκάτω τις τὸ φάρμακον, εἰ τέτριπται, and the following description of how the cold creeps up from the feet to the shins (κνημάς) of Socrates. 308

CHORUS a (in the distance).

O Iacchus! O Iacchus! O Iacchus!

xa. I have it, master: 'tis those blessed Mystics,
Of whom he told us, sporting hereabouts.

They sing the Iacchus which Diagoras b made.

DI. I think so too: we had better both keep quiet
And so find out exactly what it is.

(The calling forth of Iacchus.)

CHOR. O Iacchus! power excelling, here in stately temples dwelling,

O Iacchus! O Iacchus!
Come to tread this verdant level,
Come to dance in mystic revel,
Come whilst round thy forehead hurtles
Many a wreath of fruitful myrtles,
Come with wild and saucy paces
Mingling in our joyous dance,

Pure and holy, which embraces all the charms of all the Graces,

When the mystic choirs advance.

Break off the measure, and change the time; and now with chanting and hymns adorn Demeter, goddess mighty and high, the harvest-queen, the giver of corn.

Like "Zeus's Corinth," he "the wraps" keeps saying o'er and o'er.

CHOR. Now wheel your sacred dances through the glade with flowers bedight,

All ye who are partakers of the holy festal rite;
And I will with the women and the holy maidens go Where they keep the nightly vigil, an auspicious light to show.

And the meadows full of posies,
Now haste we to the meadows
In our own old way,
In choral dances blending,
In dances never ending,
Which only for the holy

O, happy mystic chorus,
The blessed sunshine o'er us
On us alone is smiling,
In its soft sweet light:
On us who strove for ever
With holy, pure endeavour,
Alike by friend and stranger
To guide our steps aright.

DI. What's the right way to knock? I wonder how The natives here are wont to knock at doors.

DI. Boy! boy!

AEACUS.<sup>2</sup> Who's there?

I, Heracles the strong! DI. AE. O, you most shameless desperate ruffian, you! O, villain, villain, arrant vilest villain! Who seized our Cerberus by the throat, and fled, And ran, and rushed, and bolted, haling off The dog, my charge! But now I've got thee fast. So close the Styx's inky-hearted rock,b The blood-bedabbled peak of Acheron Shall hem thee in: the hell-hounds of Cocytus Prowl round thee; whilst the hundred-headed Asp Shall rive thy heart-strings: the Tartesian Lamprey c Prey on thy lungs: and those Tithrasian Gorgons Mangle and tear thy kidneys, mauling them, Entrails and all, into one bloody mash. I'll speed a running foot to fetch them hither.

Furies are ever running round, like hell-hounds, to make sure that he does not escape: and the Asp, the Lamprey, and the Gorgons are savagely devouring his vitals ": R.

The words have a terrible sound (of. Τάρταρος and "Εχιδτα), but in fact the "Tartesian Lamprey" was a noted delicacy.

xa. Hallo! what now? I've done it : call the god.a DI. Get up, you laughing-stock; get up directly, XA. Before you're seen. What, I get up? I'm fainting. DI. Please dab a sponge of water on my heart. xa. Here! Dab it on. Where is it? DI. Ye golden gods,b XA. Lies your heart THERE? DI. It got so terrified It fluttered down into my stomach's pit. XA. xa. Poseidon! quite heroic.

DI. 'Deed I think so.

But weren't you frightened at those dreadful threats
And shoutings?

xa. Frightened? Not a bit. I cared not.

DI. Come then, if you're so very brave a man,
Will you be I, and take the hero's club
And lion's skin, since you're so monstrous plucky?
And I'll be now the slave, and bear the luggage.

XA. Hand them across. I cannot choose but take them.

DI. Nav, you're the rogue from Melite's a own self. And I'll pick up and carry on the traps.

MAID. O welcome, Heracles! come in, sweetheart. My Lady, when they told her, set to work, Baked mighty loaves, boiled two or three tureens Of lentil soup, roasted a prime ox whole, Made rolls and honey-cakes. So come along.

XA. (declining) You are too kind.

I will not let you go. MAID. I will not LET you! Why, she's stewing slices Of juicy bird's-flesh, and she's making comfits, And tempering down her richest wine. Come, dear, Come along in.

XA. (still declining) Pray thank her.

O you're jesting. I shall not let you off: there's such a lovely Flute-girl all ready, and we've two or three Dancing-girls also.

Eh! what! Dancing-girls? XA. MAID. Young budding virgins, freshly tired and trimmed. Come, dear, come in. The cook was dishing up The cutlets, and they are bringing in the tables.

xa. Then go you in, and tell those dancing-girls Of whom you spake, I'm coming in Myself. Pick up the traps, my lad, and follow me.

Hi! stop! you're not in earnest, just because I dressed you up, in fun, as Heracles? Come, don't keep fooling, Xanthias, but lift And carry in the traps yourself.

To exhort and teach the city;

this we therefore now advise—

End the townsmen's apprehensions;

equalize the rights of all;

If by Phrynichus's d wrestlings

Yet to these 'tis surely open,

having put away their sin,

For their slips and vacillations

pardon at your hands to win.

Give your brethren back their franchise.

Sin and shame it were that slaves,

Who have once with stern devotion fought your battle on the waves,

Should be straightway lords and masters,

yea Plataeans fully blown—

Not that this deserves our censure;

there I praise you; there alone

Has the city, in her anguish, policy and wisdom shown-

&lt;sup>7</sup> The occupation of Deceleia had suspended the working of the silver mines at Laureium, so that the old silver coinage (τἀρχαῖον νόμισμα) had to be replaced, and in 407-6 B.C. certain gold statues of Victory were turned into coin (τὸ καινὸν χρυσίον). But in the archonship of Callias 406-5 B.C. copper (or to speak strictly, bronze) coins were, for the first time, issued from the Athenian mint.

THE FROGS, 718-734

Often has it crossed my fancy, that the city loves to deal With the very best and noblest members of her commonweal. Just as with our ancient coinage, and the newly-minted gold.a Yea for these, our sterling pieces, all of pure Athenian mould, All of perfect die and metal. all the fairest of the fair. All of workmanship unequalled, proved and valued everywhere Both amongst our own Hellenes and Barbarians far away, These we use not: but the worthless pinchbeck coins of yesterday, Vilest die and basest metal. now we always use instead. Even so, our sterling townsmen, nobly born and nobly bred, Men of worth and rank and mettle, men of honourable fame. Trained in every liberal science, choral dance and manly game, These we treat with scorn and insult. but the strangers newliest come, Worthless sons of worthless fathers. pinchbeck townsmen, yellowy scum, Whom in earlier days the city hardly would have stooped to use Even for her scapegoat victims, these for every task we choose. O unwise and foolish people, yet to mend your ways begin;

AE. O heaven and earth!
When I do that, I can't contain myself.

xa. Phoebus Apollo! clap your hand in mine,
Kiss and be kissed: and prithee tell me this,
Tell me by Zeus, our rascaldom's own god,
What's all that noise within? What means this hubbub
And row?

AE. That's Aeschylus and Euripides.

xa. Eh?

AE. Wonderful, wonderful things are going on. The dead are rioting, taking different sides.

xa. Why, what's the matter?

With all the crafts, the good and noble crafts,
That the chief master of his art in each
Shall have his dinner in the assembly hall,<sup>a</sup>
And sit by Pluto's side.

xa. I understand.

AE. Until another comes, more wise than he In the same art: then must the first give way.

xa. And how has this disturbed our Aeschvlus?

AE. Twas he that occupied the tragic chair, As, in his craft, the noblest.

XA. Who does now?

AE. But when Euripides came down, he kept Flourishing off before the highwaymen, Thieves, burglars, parricides—these form our mob In Hades—till with listening to his twists And turns, and pleas and counterpleas, they went Mad on the man, and hailed him first and wisest:

Elate with this, he claimed the tragic chair Where Aeschylus was seated.

XA. Wasn't he pelted?

AE. Not he: the populace clamoured out to try Which of the twain was wiser in his art.

xa. You mean the rascals?

AE. Aye, as high as heaven!

xa. But were there none to side with Aeschylus?

AE. Scanty and sparse the good, (regards the audience) the same as here.

xa. And what does Pluto now propose to do?

AE. He means to hold a tournament, and bring Their tragedies to the proof.

But Sophocles,
How came not he to claim the tragic chair?

AE. Claim it? Not he! When he came down, he kissed With reverence Aeschylus, and clasped his hand, And yielded willingly the chair to him. But now he's going, says Cleidemides, a To sit third-man: and then if Aeschylus win, He'll stay content: if not, for his art's sake, He'll fight to the death against Euripides.

xa. Will it come off?

AE. O yes, by Zeus, directly.

And then, I hear, will wonderful things be done,
The art poetic will be weighed in scales.

xA. What! weigh out tragedy, like butcher's meat?

AE. Levels they'll bring, and measuring-tapes for words, And moulded oblongs,<sup>b</sup> mostly heard about Sophocles when he withdrew into retirement in his old age.

Vows that he'll test the dramas, word by word.

xa. Aeschylus chafes at this, I fancy.

Well, He lowered his brows, upglaring like a bull.<sup>a</sup>

xa. And who's to be the judge?

AE.

AE. There came the rub.

Skilled men were hard to find: for with the Athenians Aeschylus, somehow, did not hit it off,

xa. Too many burglars, I expect, he thought.

AE. And all the rest, he said, were trash and nonsense
To judge poetic wits. So then at last
They chose your lord, an expert in the art.
But we go in: for when our lords are bent
On urgent business, that means blows for us.

Horribly frowning and growling,

his fury will launch at the foe

To judge the strife with high poetic skill. Meanwhile (to the Chorus) invoke the Muses with a song.

CHOR. O Muses, the daughters divine of Zeus, the immaculate Nine,

Who gaze from your mansions serene on intellects subtle and keen,

When down to the tournament lists,

in bright-polished wit they descend,

With wrestling and turnings and twists

in the battle of words to contend,

O come and behold what the two antagonist poets can do,

Whose mouths are the swiftest to teach grand language and filings of speech:

For now of their wits is the sternest encounter commencing in earnest

DI. Ye two, put up your prayers before ye start.

AES. Demeter, mistress, nourisher of my soul,

O make me worthy of thy mystic rites!

DI. (to Eur.) Now put on incense, you.

EU.

Eveuse me, no;

My vows are paid to other gods than these.

DI. What, a new coinage of your own?

Precisely.

DI. Pray then to them, those private gods of yours.

EU. Ether, my pasture, volubly-rolling tongue, Intelligent wit and critic nostrils keen,

O well and neatly may I trounce his plays!

CHOR. We also are yearning from these to be learning Some stately measure, some majestic grand Movement telling of conflicts nigh.

&quot; He is referring to two lost tragedies of Aeschylus, the Phrygians or the Ransom of Hector and the Niobe. In the former. Achilles was introduced, wrapped in sullen gloom for the loss of Patroclus, and refusing all food and consolation. In the latter, Niobe was shown, dumb with sorrow for her six sons and six daughters, whom Apollo and Artemis had slain ": R.

Tongues embittered, and anger high. Each has got a venturesome will, Each an eager and nimble mind; One will wield, with artistic skill, Clearcut phrases, and wit refined: Then the other, with words defiant, Stern and strong, like an angry giant Laying on with uprooted trees, Soon will scatter a world of these Superscholastic subtleties.

DI. Now then, commence your arguments, and mind you both display True wit, not metaphors, nor things which any fool could say.

Eu. As for myself, good people all,

I'll tell you by-and-by

My own poetic worth and claims;

but first of all I'll try

To show how this portentous quack

beguiled the silly fools

Whose tastes were nurtured, ere he came,

in Phrynichus's schools.

He'd bring some single mourner on, seated and veiled, 'twould be

Achilles, say, or Niobe a

—the face you could not see—

An empty show of tragic woe,

who uttered not one thing

DI. Tis true.

EU.

Then in the Chorus came,

and rattled off a string

Of four continuous lyric odes:

the mourner never stirred.

<sup>a</sup> An old-fashioned politician of some note at the time. Megaenetus is unknown. Manes is the name of the little statuette with which the game of  $\kappa \dot{\rho} \tau \tau a \beta \sigma s$  was played (cf. P. 1244), and possibly Megaenetus was fond of the game.

<sup>3</sup> The epithet refers to the legendary robber Sinis, who tied his victims to two pine-trees which he had bound together, and which, when let go, tore them limb from limb. Both epithets parody Aeschylean grandeur of description.

By chopping logic in my plays,
And making all my speakers try
To reason out the How and Why.
So now the people trace the springs,
The sources and the roots of things,
And manage all their households too
Far better than they used to do,
Scanning and searching What's amiss?
And, Why was that? And, How is this?

DI. Ay, truly, never now a man
Comes home, but he begins to scan;
And to his household loudly cries,
Why, where's my pitcher? What's the matter?
'Tis dead and gone my last year's platter.
Who gnawed these olives? Bless the sprat,
Who nibbled off the head of that?

* The love of Phaedra for her stepson Hippolytus is the subject of the play of that name; and the adulterous love of Stheneboea for Bellerophon was doubtless told in the lost Stheneboea.

THE FROGS, 1040-1054

And thence my spirit the impress took,

and many a lion-heart chief I drew,

Patrocluses, Teucers, illustrious names;

for I fain the citizen-folk would spur

To stretch themselves to their measure and height, whenever the trumpet of war they hear.

But Phaedras and Stheneboeas a? No!

no harlotry business deformed my plays.

And none can say that ever I drew a love-sick woman in all my days.

EU. For you no lot or portion had got in Queen Aphrodite.

Thank Heaven for that.

But ever on you and yours, my friend,

the mighty goddess mightily sat;

Yourself she cast to the ground at last.

DI. O ay, that came uncommonly pat.
You showed how cuckolds are made, and lo,

you were struck yourself by the very same fate.b

EU. But say, you cross-grained censor of mine, how my Stheneboeas could harm the state.

AES. Full many a noble dame, the wife of a noble citizen, hemlock took,

And died, unable the shame and sin of your Bellerophon-scenes to brook.

EU. Was then, I wonder, the tale I told of Phaedra's passionate love untrue?

AES. Not so: but tales of incestuous vice the sacred poet should hide from view,

Nor ever exhibit and blazon forth on the public stage to the public ken.

THE FROGS, 1055-1069

For boys a teacher at school is found, but we, the poets, are teachers of men. We are BOUND things honest and pure to speak. And to speak great Lycabettuses, pray, EU. And massive blocks of Parnassian rocks. is that things honest and pure to say? In human fashion we ought to speak. Alas, poor witling, and can't you see AES. That for mighty thoughts and heroic aims, the words themselves must appropriate be? And grander belike on the ear should strike the speech of heroes and godlike powers, Since even the robes that invest their limbs are statelier, grander robes than ours. Such was my plan: but when you began, you spoilt and degraded it all. How so? EII. AES. Your kings in tatters and rags you dressed, and brought them on, a beggarly show, To move, forsooth, our pity and ruth. And what was the harm, I should like to know. AES. No more will a wealthy citizen now equip for the state a galley of war.b He wraps his limbs in tatters and rags. and whines he is poor, too poor by far. DI. But under his rags he is wearing a vest, as woolly and soft as a man could wish. Let him gull the state, and he's off to the mart; an eager, extravagant buyer of fish.c AES. Moreover to prate, to harangue, to debate, is now the ambition of all in the state.

b To fit out a trireme provided by the state was one of the "public services" (λειτουργίαι) required of wealthy citizens.

Dread not any defect of wit,

Battle away without misgiving,
sure that the audience, at least, are fit.

EU. Well then I'll turn me to your prologues now, Beginning first to test the first beginning Of this fine poet's plays. Why he's obscure Even in the enunciation of the facts.

DI. Which of them will you test?

Eu. Many: but first Give us that famous one from the Oresteia.<sup>a</sup>

DI. St! Silence all! Now, Aeschylus, begin.

AES. Grave Hermes, witnessing a father's power, Be thou my saviour b and mine aid to-day, For here I come and hither I return.

DI. Eh! why the lines are only three in all.

EU. But every one contains a score of faults.

DI. Now Aeschylus, keep silent; if you don't You won't get off with three iambic lines.

AES. Silent for him!

DI. If my advice you'll take.

Eu. Why, at first starting here's a fault skyhigh.

AES. (to Dio.) You see your folly?

DI. Have your way; I care not.

AES. (to Eur.) What is my fault?

Begin the lines again.

AES. Grave Hermes, witnessing a father's power-

&lt;sup>a</sup> E. gives the last three words of 1138 a meaning which they can bear, "that dost survey my father's realm." He then "asks why does Orestes at this solemn moment address Hermes as the surveyor of his father's realm. Does he mean that the god of craft was an onlooker, when Clytaemnestra by craft destroyed her husband?": R.

THE FROGS, 1139-1161

EU. And this beside his murdered father's grave Orestes speaks?

AES. I say not otherwise.

EU. Then does he mean that when his father fell By craft and violence at a woman's hand, The god of craft was witnessing the deed? a

AES. It was not he b: it was the Helper Hermes He called the grave: and this he showed by adding It was his sire's prerogative he held.

EU. Why this is worse than all. If from his father He held this office grave, why then—°

DI. He was A graveyard rifler on his father's side.

Agraveyard liner on his lattice s side.

Also, Bacchus, the wine you drink is stale and fusty.

EU. The same thing twice says clever Aeschylus.

DI. How twice?

Why, just consider: I'll explain.

"I come," says he; and "I return," says he:
It's the same thing, to "come" and to "return."

ni. Aye, just as if you said, "Good fellow, lend me A kneading trough: likewise, a trough to knead in."

DI. O good, by Apollo!

What do you say, Euripides, to that?

He came in secret: nobody recalled him.

DI. O good, by Hermes! (Aside) I've not the least suspicion what he means.

DI. Ay, Aeschylus, Repeat one instantly: you, mark what's wrong.

AES. Now on this funeral mound I call my father To hear, to hearken.

To "hear," to "hearken"; the same thing, exactly.

DI. Aye, but he's speaking to the dead, you knave, Who cannot hear us though we call them thrice.

AES. And how do you make your prologues?

You shall hear;
And if you find one single thing said twice,

Or any useless padding, spit upon me.

In his Telephus Euripides had introduced the Achaean heroes playing at dice, and the scene had been so jeered at that he suppressed it in a revised edition. So D. maliciously offers him a line from it.

THE FROGS, 1397-1420

THE FROGS, 1421-1444

Advise the city, he shall come with me. And first of Alcibiades, let each Say what he thinks; the city travails sore.

EU. What does she think herself about him?

She loves, and hates, and longs to have him back.<sup>b</sup>
But give me your advice about the man.

EU. I loathe a townsman who is slow to aid, And swift to hurt, his town: who ways and means Finds for himself, but finds not for the state.

DI. Poseidon, but that's smart! (To Aes.) And what say you?

AES. 'Twere best to rear no lion in the state:
But having reared, 'tis best to humour him."

DI. By Zeus the Saviour, still I can't decide. One is so clever, and so clear the other. But once again. Let each in turn declare What plan of safety for the state ye've got.

EU. This is my own: the cruet-plan was his.]

DI. (to Aes.) Now, you.

AES. But tell me whom the city uses.
The good and useful?

What are you dreaming of? She hates and loathes them.

AES. Does she love the bad?

DI. Not love them, no: she uses them perforce.

AES. How can one save a city such as this,

Whom neither frieze nor woollen tunic suits?

DI. O, if to earth you rise, find out some way.

AES. There will I speak: I cannot answer here.

DI. Nay, nay; send up your guerdon from below.

AES. When they shall count the enemy's soil their own, And theirs the enemy's: when they know that ships Are their true wealth, their so-called wealth delusion.

DI. Aye, but the justices suck that down, you know.d

PL. Now then, decide.

DI. I will; and thus I'll do it.
